In America, Canada, Australia and New Zealand, the general rule is that double quotes are used to denote direct speech. Single quotes are used to enclose a quote within a quote, a quote within a headline, or a title within a quote.

“Out of nowhere Tracey told me, ‘I don’t like you anymore, ’”

Mark said sadly. OR Headline: ‘Negotiations in progress, ’ say local officials

OR Carl said, “That ‘Ozymandias’ episode of Breaking Bad really knocked my socks off.”
